In order to ensure the optimal technical operations of the conference sessions scheduled during the event, the Agency will be required to liaise on an ongoing basis with Risho University's technical services. The aim is to draw up specifications for the technical services to be provided or completed in order to ensure that the programme's conferences and workshops run technically smoothly.

- On-site audio system (sufficient or to be amplified?)
Type and number of microphones available in the rooms for the speakers.
- Video projection equipment:

- High-performance WIFI signal on the Congress floor or requiring reinforcement?

2.2 Simultaneous interpretation (Japanese / English / Japanese)

The Congress ceremonies and conferences will feature simultaneous interpretation in 2 languages: Japanese and English.

To this end, the Agency will propose the overall service (qualified interpreters and equipment) in either of 2 formats: on-site interpreters or remote interpreters (as event interpretation agencies have been doing more frequently in recent years, with a view to optimising budgets and logistics).

2.4 Signage, decoration of the venue (exterior, reception hall and Congress floor)

The visual elements, either printed or integrated into existing digital screens (banners, kakemonos, hanging panels, etc.), will have the dual function of announcing the event (external access to the University, reception), directing visitors (reception towards the floor reserved for the event) and displaying the programme of sessions in front of each room. A list of strategic visual supports will be drawn up by the Agency (specifying the technical requirements, sizes, printing supports, media files to be supplied, etc.), so that ECPM can produce the artwork and then entrust the printing and installation to the Agency.
